PREFACE

1/9/59
The compilers of this list have often felt that there were no truer words than those of Ecclesiastes: "Of making many books there is no end." What started some eight years ago as an attempt to "bring Donaldson up to date" has turned into the making of a regional bibliography covering one-fifth of the state of New York. The term "Adirondack" has various meanings. In this bibliography it indicates the region included in the Adirondack State Park and the western Champlain valley; in a few cases areas just outside the Park line, such as Trenton Falls, have been included. Material relating to the French settlements is also listed. The literature of the Adirondacks knows no exact geographical boundary.

In general the items contained in the Adirondack Bibliography are printed. But since much important material has appeared in doctoral and master's dissertations, many of which are in typescript, an exception has been made in their case. A few local histories published in mimeograph have also been included. The members of the Bibliography Committee have tried to find as many as possible of the vast number of books, pamphlets and periodical articles relating to the North Country that have been issued through the year 1955. No attempt has been made to list newspaper articles—we leave that to another committee—though several newspaper columns relating to the Adirondacks are included as an addendum to the list of periodicals about the region.

For convenience of use a long bibliography should be broken down into various categories and fully indexed. The special classification devised for this volume is complemented by a detailed index. It should be noted that some topics appear in several divisions. Articles about deer, for instance, may be found under "conservation," under "zoology," and under "hunting," depending on the content of the article. An examination of the table of contents will furnish the clue to the order of subjects. Arrangement by date rather than by alphabetical order is indicated by a note at the beginning of the section. The index should be used to bring together related topics and scattered references.

It has been difficult, in some cases, to decide what should be omitted. John Brown, the liberator, is the subject of many volumes, but do they all belong in an Adirondack bibliography? After examining a long list of references the Committee felt that only material relating to his life at North Elba, and a standard biography, should be included. Reviews appearing in periodicals relating to the Adirondacks have been listed; no search has been made for other reviews.

One of the pleasures of preparing this bibliography has been the opportunity to examine special Adirondack libraries. The Committee is grateful to the following persons who allowed us free access to their collections: Russell M. L.

Carson, Harry W. Hicks, Grace L. Hudowalski, George Marshall, Orra A. Phelps, Marjorie L. Porter, Paul Schaefer and Donald Van Brakle. Book dealers, too, have been generous with advice. We are particularly indebted to James Howgate, Harmon Lockrow and John Skinner.

Probably the largest library collection on the Adirondacks is in the Saranac Lake Free Library. The nucleus of the collection is the personal library of Alfred L. Donaldson, listed in the second volume of his History of the Adirondacks. In addition to the large number of printed items, noted here, the library contains important manuscripts and letters. A smaller group of Adirondackana, about fifty books and pamphlets, several of them unique, came from the library of Kenneth Goldthwaite and were presented to the Saranac Lake Free Library by his son, Eaton Goldthwaite. An extensive collection, gathered by Mr. and Mrs. William Munson, was acquired through the efforts of the late William Chapman White, who raised funds for its purchase. The Munson Collection includes more than five hundred books and pamphlets, a large number of photographs, maps and scrapbooks of clippings. An important addition was made to the map collection with the purchase of forty-five rare early eighteenth-century maps. The Library's Adirondack collection is growing steadily. Several hundred additional books, pamphlets and periodicals have been purchased through memorial funds or added by gift. The most recent acquisition in this field is the fine Robert Louis Stevenson Collection of the late Dr. Lawrason Brown, presented by friends in memory of Mr. William Morris.

At Keene Valley the Historical Society maintains a center for local history. Its book collection, the Loomis Collection, contains over four hundred volumes and is housed in the Keene Valley Public Library. The books are supplemented by scrapbooks of clippings, picture files, typescripts of family histories and reminiscences, church and cemetery records and other valuable source material for the history of the Valley. Contributions are made by summer and winter residents.

At Port Henry the Sherman Free Library has important collections on the area. In 1950 it received, through the will of Warner McLaughlin, its Adirondack Book Collection, consisting of over fifteen hundred books and pamphlets on the Adirondacks and northern Vermont. Many rare guidebooks are included. The Library also has part of the McLaughlin stamp collection with numerous stampless covers and postmarks of northern New York. In addition, Port Henry has the Frank S. Witherbee Collection, established in 1910, an outgrowth of Mr. Witherbee's interest and activities in connection with the Champlain Tercentenary. This collection contains one hundred and thirty-three items and is especially strong on the history of the mining industry.

An Adirondack center in the making is the newly established Adirondack Museum at Blue Mountain Lake. Several large collections have been purchased to start its library, as yet not organized. No list of library resources would be complete without mention of the New York State Historical Association's Headquarters House library at Ticonderoga and the special historical collection in the Crandall Library at Glens Falls.

The Committee is particularly grateful to Mr. Frederick T. Kelsey, who made possible the examination of the important source material in the files of the Association for the Protection of the Adirondacks. The following members of the faculty of Vassar College helped with the classification: Gladys E. Baker, John L. George, Madelene Pierce and Scott Warthin. Librarians in charge of special collections have all been interested and helpful. Their cooperation has been a big factor in the making of the Bibliography. Thanks are also due to the following: the Audubon Society Library; the Engineering Societies Library; the New York Public Library; the New York State Library; the State University College of Forestry Library; Vassar College Library; Yale University Library.

We know that this compilation is incomplete. Just today a fellow enthusiast sent a note of the following advertisement from the Essex County Times & Westport Herald of March 22, 1843: "Bishop's Trial together with his Life and Confession, as dictated by himself, for sale at this office. Priced 12½ cents. Peddlars supplied at a dollar per dozen." C. Eleanor Hall, who sent the note, says that Bishop was a murderer who was hanged at Elizabethtown in 1843. She has never seen a copy of the pamphlet.

We hope this compilation is reasonably free from error. It is our plan to issue yearly supplements to the Bibliography in the Club periodical, The Ad-i-ron-dac, with a cumulation at some future date. Corrections and addenda will be welcome and will be included in the yearly supplements.

This work could not have been compiled without the members of the Bibliography Committee. It could not have been published without the generous support of Club members, under the able chairmanship of Borden H. Mills, Sr., who headed the Bibliography Fund drive.

INTRODUCTION

To say that in any field of interest understanding is essential to appreciation, and that the broader our knowledge the greater our appreciation, may seem a roundabout approach to the subject of an Adirondack bibliography. But these thoughts are the theme of this introduction.

We may admire the sight of the MacIntyre Mountains rising majestically from the North Elba plateau. We possess a broader vision if, with the act of seeing, there flashes into our consciousness the story of the pioneer iron industry that began so many years ago in the recesses of those great hills. We may be awed by the gloomy cliffs that rise on either side of the Chapel Pond road, and entranced by the tremendous panorama of the High Peaks that lies on the left as we travel from Keene to Lake Placid. These scenes take on more meaning for us if we have some knowledge of what these roads were like a hundred years ago, in the days of horse-drawn stages and wayside inns. The lovely view of Keene Valley from the rock slabs of Baxter is even more intriguing when we know what the village looked like in the time of our grandfathers. If we know the story of the old Adirondack Lodge and its unhappy owner, the Heart Lake region takes on a new poignancy.

One could go on: almost every Adirondack name has its special meaning. This special meaning comes alive for us if we can bring to our beloved mountains the three dimensions of sight, historical perspective and imagination. This is true whether our Adirondack interest is that of a mountaineer delighting in wooded trails and high ascents, or that of a naturalist watching in the spring for the coming of the flowers and birds, or that of an artist reproducing on his canvas the charm of unspoiled wilderness and lofty peaks. These hills can enrich our lives to the degree that we can experience and know them.

How may we experience and know them? Perception, imagination, knowledge and inspiration—these are within ourselves. We are all different and no one can tell us how to develop these qualities. But historical perspective is quite another thing, for the literature of the Adirondacks is a Pierian spring from which all may drink.

Familiarity with Adirondack literature is an important step in acquiring well-rounded experience. The easy way to a good background of Adirondack reading is to take advantage of books or articles that are the result of laborious research by Adirondack historians, scientists and writers. Volumes such as A History of the Adirondacks, by Alfred L. Donaldson; Fifty Years of Conservation in New York State, by Gurth Whipple; Historical Sketches of Northern New York and the Adirondack Wilderness, by Nathaniel B. Sylvester; The Story of Adirondac, by Arthur H. Masten; Peaks and People of the Adirondacks, by R. M. C. Carson;

Plants and Animals of Mount Marcy, by Charles C. Adams and others; A History of the Lumber Industry in the State of New York, by William F. Fox; "The Rocks of the Adirondacks," by Professor E. S. C. Smith of Union College (in High Spots, December 1930); and more recently Township 34, by Harold K. Hochschild; and Adirondack Country, by William C. White, represent the gleanings of many years and cover almost the whole field of Adirondack interest: general, local and natural history, fiction, biography, science and industry; the information is available to us in easy-to-read form without our stirring from our armchairs.

That is a good way of gaining experience, but not the best. To attain the utmost satisfaction and pleasure you must put some source books on your shelves too. Some of these, such as the Reverend Joel T. Headley's The Adirondack, or Life in the Woods, which went through several editions, are not hard to find and not expensive. Others, such as Long Lake, by John Todd, are rare and precious and not only command a fancy price but challenge the skill and patience of the most adroit and experienced collectors. How many today know where or how a copy may be obtained of Six Summits, by Newell Martin? Or the letters, presumably by William C. Redfield, about the Adirondacks in the Journal of Commerce during August 1837?

The fun of collecting Adirondackana in itself is an incentive to a fascinating hobby and a game well worth the candle. It can arouse a whole gamut of thrills from the simple pleasure of finding, after a short search, a nice Headley, to the excitement of acquiring a copy of Recollections of John Howard Redfield (William C. Redfield's son and biographer) printed for private circulation in 1900. This book has only one Adirondack chapter, but that chapter contains a few facts about the first Mount Marcy expedition that, to the best of our knowledge, are not recorded elsewhere. A copy of the book was lent to me in 1938 by Professor Alfred C. Redfield of Harvard, but sixteen years passed before I was able to find a copy I could put on my shelves. Among other fine and important books that have been printed in limited editions for private circulation are two already mentioned: Hochschild's Township 34 and Masten's Story of Adirondac. Of the latter only 125 copies were published. By their very nature these were already rare items as they came off the press.

The new collector who begins with a definite objective will find later that discrimination contributes to a sustained and permanent interest. Collecting without a fixed goal can soon lose its attraction, because it lacks purpose. A curiosity about mountain names inspired me in 1922 to begin gathering a library of Adirondack books, pamphlets, articles, maps and pictures, which in turn gave me the wonderful opportunity in 1927 of writing Peaks and People of the Adirondacks. Although the scope of my collection has spread widely, nomenclature and the historical have remained the controlling considerations. I have collected slowly and carefully, according to my own plan, and after thirty-five years my library, and my interest in its being used to good purpose, are still growing.

Probably the most comprehensive and complete collection of Adirondackana is in the Saranac Lake Free Library. It includes the Alfred L. Donaldson Collection and the Munson Collection. The former was gathered for use in writing A History of the Adirondacks. The author-collector was an invalid who came to the mountains for his health, and his History and his Collection came into existence against tremendous physical odds. They were possible only because of the even greater spirit and determination of the man. He had plans for a third volume of the History, but died before it was begun. During the last two years of his life Donaldson was the frailest human being I have ever known, but his strong personality immediately made one forget the pitiful weakness. His bright and cheery letters in those final years gave not a hint of his losing battle; he lived richly and constructively to the end.

A splendid bibliography is included in the second volume of Donaldson's History. The list is divided into two parts: first, the Donaldson Collection; and, second, a long compilation by James A. McMillen supplementing an earlier and slighter bibliography by Miss C. A. Sherrill published in the Forest, Fish and Game Commission Report for 1898. It is over thirty years since the Donaldson bibliographies appeared; the Adirondack Mountain Club now carries on the work with its Adirondack Bibliography, which expands and brings up to date the previous lists. Since such a massive work will be used mainly for reference, this introduction highlights important items by calling attention to a selective list compiled in 1934 for the Club's Guide to Adirondack Trails. This list was intended as a recommendation for a neat little collection for any but advanced collectors. The search for these writings can be a fine sleuthing adventure. There are only a few titles that need to be added to the original list, and I would not take any away. Stars indicate books that are not wholly of Adirondack concern. Since all these volumes are listed in the Adirondack Bibliography, publishing details are omitted. Each group is arranged chronologically.

The earliest information concerning the region relates to Indian possession; the following books are recommended:

Indian History:

- The League of the Iroquois*, by Lewis H. Morgan
- Aboriginal Occupation of New York*, by William M. Beauchamp
- The Iroquois*, by S. C. Kimm
- A History of the New York Iroquois*, by William M. Beauchamp
- Aboriginal Place Names of New York*, by William M. Beauchamp
- The Archaeological History of New York*, by Arthur C. Parker

Indian Legends:

- Vigil of Faith*, by Charles Fenno Hoffman
- Summer Gleanings*, by John Todd

Indian Myths:

- Myths and Legends of Our Own Land*, by Charles M. Skinner

The following is a selected list of local and general historical value. The Documentary History is recommended to the serious student.

- Documentary History of the State of New York*, arranged by E. B. O'Callaghan
- History of St. Lawrence and Franklin Counties*, by Franklin B. Hough
- The Opening of the Adirondacks* (published anonymously)
- The History of Lake Champlain*, by Peter S. Palmer
- Military and Civil History of the County of Essex*, by Winslow C. Watson

Historical Sketches of Northern New York and the Adirondack Wilderness, by Nathaniel B. Sylvester

Historic Handbook of the Northern Tour*, by Francis Parkman

History of Warren County, by H. P. Smith

Pleasant Valley, by George Levi Brown

The Story of Saranac, by Henry W. Raymond

The Adirondack Region, by Richard Coughlin

A History of the Adirondacks, by Alfred L. Donaldson

The Papers of Sir William Johnson*, edited by James Sullivan

Annals of Tryon County*, by William W. Campbell

Jesuit Relations*, selected and edited by Edna Kenton

Peaks and People of the Adirondacks, by Russell M. L. Carson

Here is a list of the old and recent guides to the Adirondacks. The Conservation Department's "Recreation Circulars" and O'Kane's book are valuable for current use. The old Stoddard and Wallace guides are now of great interest for their historical value.

Guidebooks and Circulars:

Descriptive Guide to the Adirondacks, by E. R. Wallace

The Adirondacks, by S. R. Stoddard

Lake George, by Arthur S. Hopkins (Recreation Circular 6)

Adirondack Canoe Routes, by William G. Howard (Recreation Circular 7)

The Trails to Marcy, by Arthur S. Hopkins (Recreation Circular 8)

Lake Placid Trails, by W. D. Mulholland (Recreation Circular 10)

The Lake Placid Country, by T. Morris Longstreth

Trails and Summits of the Adirondacks, by Walter Collins O'Kane

Here are some of the most fascinating books of Adirondack literature.

Travel, Exploration and Adventure:

Wild Scenes in the Forest, by Charles Fenno Hoffman

Letters from the Backwoods and Adirondac, by Joel T. Headley

The Adirondack, or Life in the Woods, by Joel T. Headley

Letters from the United States, Cuba and Canada*, by Lady Amelia Murray

Woods and Waters, or the Saranac and the Racket, by Alfred B. Street

The Hudson, from the Wilderness to the Sea, by Benson J. Lossing

The Indian Pass, by Alfred B. Street

Adventures in the Wilderness, or Camp-Life in the Adirondacks, by William H. H. Murray

Narrative of a Bear Hunt in the Adirondacks, by Verplanck Colvin

Ascent and Barometrical Measurement of Mount Seward, by Verplanck Colvin

Letters from the Woods, by Edward B. Osborne (Often cited by cover title: Forest, Lake and Random Rhymes)

Through the Adirondacks in Eighteen Days, by Martin Van B. Ives

The Adirondacks, by T. Morris Longstreth

High Peaks of the Adirondacks, by Robert Marshall

Friendly Adirondack Peaks, by Robert S. Wickham

Township 34, by Harold K. Hochschild

Adirondack Country, by William Chapman White

Belles-Lettres:

In the Wilderness, by Charles Dudley Warner

Wake Robin*, by John Burroughs

Autobiography of a Journalist*, by William J. Stillman

Little Rivers*, by Henry Van Dyke

Biographies:

- Personal Reminiscences*, by L. E. Chittenden
Biographical Sketch of Verplanck Colvin, from Allen's History . . . of the Alling-Allens Adirondack Murray, by Harry V. Radford
- John Brown, 1800-1859*, by Oswald Garrison Villard
- Life and Adventures of Nat Foster*, by A. L. Byron-Curtiss
- Life and Adventures of "Ned Bunline"*, by Fred E. Pond
- Letters of William James*, edited by Henry James
- Johnson of the Mohawks*, by Arthur Pound

Magazine Articles of Miscellaneous Interest:

- "Some Account of Two Visits to the Mountains of Essex County, N.Y. in the Years 1836 and 1837 with a Sketch of the Northern Sources of the Hudson," by William C. Redfield. American Journal of Science and Arts, April 1838. First recorded ascent of Mount Marcy
- "A Forest Story. The Adirondack Woods and Waters," by T. Addison Richards. Harper's New Monthly Magazine, September 1859
- "The Adirondac Wilderness," by "W." The Williams Quarterly, July 1863. The author is Edward P. Wells
- "The Racquette Club." Harper's New Monthly Magazine, August 1870. Written by Charles Hallock
- "Camp Lou," by Marc Cook. Harper's New Monthly Magazine, May 1881

Shortly after the organization of the Adirondack Mountain Club in 1922, the first Club publication was issued: High Peaks of the Adirondacks, by Robert Marshall, an ardent champion of wilderness protection and a charter member. The author little knew that the Club's pioneer booklet describing the ascent of and view from all the major Adirondack peaks would ultimately become the inspiration of a famous group of mountaineers, the Adirondack Forty-Sixers. Publication of the Marshall brochure was one of the outstanding accomplishments of the Club's first year.

In November 1922 the Club inaugurated a quarterly magazine called High Spots; this began as a four-page leaflet and continued until December 1937, when the twenty-four-page final issue commemorated the one hundredth anniversary of the first ascent of Marcy. The next to the last issue (July 1937) was a forty-eight-page "Mount Marcy Anthology." The current Club periodical, The Ad-i-ron-dac, carries on the tradition of High Spots.

The Adirondack Mountain Club's aims, published for the first time in the April 1923 issue of High Spots, included the following statement: "particular attention to be given to collecting data concerning scenery, history, botany, geology, forestry, fish and game of the Adirondacks." One of the original committees appointed in the first year was a Committee on Information and Publications. The second issue of High Spots acknowledged receipt of eight Adirondack books contributed to the Club's budding library, and articles in succeeding issues indicated a continuing interest and growth. The Club has had from its beginning a live and vital interest not only in existing Adirondackana but in making its own contribution thereto. The culmination of this one of its several activities is the Adirondack Bibliography. The Club and all historically minded Adirondack enthusiasts are deeply indebted to the hard-working Bibliography Committee for the happy fruition of their long and arduous work. Their unselfish volunteer efforts will result in saving from oblivion much of what has been published about the Adirondacks over the last one hundred and twenty-five years.

The first comprehensive history of the Adirondacks, not yet superseded. Extracts in High Spots, July 1937, 14:no.3:42-43. Mr. Donald Van Brakle of Saranac Lake has furnished the following information: Variant bindings. The original binding is dark-green cloth with gilt lettering. Sometime after publication a number of unbound sets were discovered in the publishing house. These were bound in a lighter, smoother green cloth and remaindered to Mr. E.L.Gray, a bookseller, of Saranac Lake. Mr. Van Brakle has a copy bound in three-quarter black morocco with marbled boards and marbled end papers. It was dedicated to Henry S. Harper with a rhymed inscription by Donaldson, who referred to it as the "Author's special edition de looks" because of a photograph of the author following the preface. The inscription is dated May 25, 1921, and this edition may have been published for presentation purposes. Donaldson inscribed a set in original binding to his wife on May 2, 1921, a possible indication that the de luxe edition was issued subsequently. 17
